

Drifting

Ellen Rice (Copyright September 2013)

[verse]:

Oh, the tide swirled sugared rivulets, of sand upon the beach
Shone without a soul to notice, he was barely out of reach – just drifting

Oh mama won't you help me now, 'cause only you can tell I've been looking for something, or someone who knows me well – An I'm drifting

Drifting slowly out to sea in the shadow of the bay
I may be lost, but I hope I'll find my way – Just drifting

[bridge – chorus]:

We were coming down the mountain
We were coming down the mountain, alone

As we laughed and danced and sang together, you told me the stories that you'd never known yet

And I told you of the battles and the triumphs of the hours, though they'd never flown yet

We were coming down the mountain
We were coming down, the mountain, too late

[verse]:

Oh, the tide swirled sugared rivulets, of sand upon the beach
Shone without a soul to notice, he was barely out of reach – just drifting

Oh mama won't you help me now, 'cause only you can tell
I've been looking for something, someone who knows me well – just drifting

Drifting slowly out to sea in the shadow of the bay
I may be lost, but it doesn't matter anyway – Just drifting
